My condo at 975 Memorial Drive and the whole Charles Hotel complex is a good example of how an integrated plan can work - and it was forty years ago. Persistent and empowered citizen input created a plan that worked for the project developers (something had to replace the Red Line car barns), the neighborhood, Harvard Square (including the merchants' need for parking) and Cambridge as a whole.

Fresh Pond and Alewife deserve to receive the same sort of integrated, citizen-driven planning - as does all of Cambridge.
