Peace Be Unto You,

Dear City Clerk and City Council Members

It was reported on October 28, 2014 in the Cambridge Chronicle that an unidentified woman was found dead on a Harvard Square bench on Tuesday morning of that week. It was also reported that according to Cambridge Police, a passerby spotted the woman lying on the bench and called police who responded to the location at 1426 Mass. Ave., according to Jeremy Warnick, director of communications for Cambridge Police. The woman's name and age have not yet been determined, Warnick said. Her body was taken to the state's Medical Examiner's office to determine the cause of death.

Through inquiry, I found out from a reliable source that the dead homeless woman's name was Connie. I could not find out anything else about her. That seems to be all that is known about her.

I'm encouraging you all to adopt a resolution on the death of this homeless woman Connie, and add it to the public agenda. This is another example in our city of Cambridge, MA, of the severity of homelessness. I need the City of Cambridge to honor the memory of this homeless woman in this way.

Yours In Peace,

Mr. Hasson J. Rashid,
