Water Pressure Restored after Water Main Break, Water is Safe for Consumption

June 5, 2010 – Water pressure has been restored in Cambridge after last night’s water main break on Broadway and Trowbridge Street that caused disruptions to service, flooding, and road closures.

Only a small area near the site of the water main break remains affected at this time.

There is no need to boil water. While some discoloration of the water may appear initially, residents are encouraged to run the water until it is clear. The water has been tested and is safe for consumption.

Residents on the even side of Broadway, from Goodman Street to Quincy Street, may be without water until approximately 7AM tomorrow, June 6th. Crews are working diligently to get residents water as soon as possible.

Broadway remains closed to traffic at Trowbridge Street. Motorists and pedestrians are encouraged to seek alternate routes for the morning commute as traffic will be disrupted.

Residents with questions relating to their water are asked to call the Cambridge Water Department at 617-349-4770.
