Cambridge Police Arrest Three for Armed Robbery & Assault

August 19, 2010 – On August 16, 2010, Cambridge Police Detectives arrested three individuals for an incident that occurred on January 20, 2010 on Western Avenue in Cambridge with help from the Boston Police Fugitive Unit, Massachusetts State Police Violent Fugitive Apprehension Section, MBTA Transit Police, and the US Marshals Service.

Detective Daniel Marshall of the Cambridge Police Department's Major Crime Unit hailed the arrests, saying, "This is a prime example of what law enforcement agencies can do when they work together. Through sharing information and working closely with one another to build a case, we were able to coordinate with Boston Police, MBTA Police, Massachusetts State Police, and the US Marshalls to remove these dangerous individuals from our city streets and bring closure to a crime victim."

Ulises Matos, 18, Rashon Sheffield, 20, and Brian Torado, 19, all of Boston, were arrested and charged with Armed Robbery and Assault & Battery with a Dangerous Weapon after they allegedly robbed and assaulted a male Cambridge resident in January.

The victim reported being robbed and assaulted by three males who allegedly stole the victim's cell phone and wallet before striking him over the head with a glass bottle as they fled the area, causing a deep laceration to the victim's head which required medical attention.
