Cambridge Seniors Graduate from Senior Citizen Police Academy

May 13, 2010 – For seven weeks this winter, Officer Phil Chu and Officer Ed Burke of the Cambridge Police Department Community Relations Unit facilitated a Senior Citizen Police Academy for residents of the Miller Apartments in Cambridge.

During the program, representatives from various units of the police department attended the academy and presented information about what their unit does and how it works. Seniors were able to handle the equipment used by CPD officers and detectives as well as ask questions about police work.

Twenty-four Cambridge senior citizens successfully completed the academy and were honored at a graduation ceremony held in the Community Room of the Senior Center on Lambert Street where all enjoyed pizza and cake.

In attendance at the graduation were several members of the Cambridge Police Department Community Relations Unit as well as members of the Command Staff and Commissioner Robert C. Haas. Commissioner Haas was on hand to celebrate the graduation as well as award participants their Certificates of Completion and pose for photos with those in attendance.

“I am very proud of our officers and our department for offering this program,” Haas said, “I think it was very informative for the seniors who attended and they all seemed to learn a lot and really enjoy themselves. I look forward to continuing to offer this program in the future.”
